Best Practice No. 1

Title: Constructing Rainwater Harvesting System

Objective: The objective of setting up a rainwater harvesting system is to collect and store rainwater for later use, rather than allowing it to runoff.

The Context: Our college is Punjab's first government college to start a rain-water harvesting system under the aegis of the Soil and Conservation Department, Punjab. Conservation and Management of Soil and Water Resources in Collaboration with Stakeholders for Sustainable Development is the mission statement of the department and our college has taken a giant leap in this direction. This is undoubtedly one of the best practices our college takes pride in.

The Practice: A feasibility study was conducted to select suitable catchment areas, design the appropriate filtration and storage systems, and efforts are made to maintain the system regularly to ensure optimal performance. Experts were consulted to set up and maintain rainwater harvesting systems on the campus for sustainable water conservation practices.

Evidence of Success: It allows for the collection and storage of rainwater for later use, reducing the demand for potable water and easing the strain on water resources on the college campus.

Problems Encountered and Resources Required: The only complication was selecting the appropriate location and size of the rainwater harvesting system to be constructed. But, after consulting the relevant experts, the setup was prepared with optimum care and precision. The resources required were permits and approvals from State Government, budget and funding, expert consultation, feasibility study, suitable catchment areas, pipes, pumps, fittings, filtration and storage systems, and regular maintenance and cleaning.

Notes: Rainwater harvesting is one of the best practices for conserving water and promoting sustainability. Consistent with the efforts to save water, the college got its own submersible pump through RUSA Grant which was inaugurated by the principal on 24-11-2022.

Best Practice No. 2

Title: Upliftment and Empowerment of Girl Students

Objective: To promote gender equality, provide equal opportunities for education and employment, develop leadership skills, and create a safe and supportive learning environment.

The Context: The college creates a safe and inclusive environment that provides protection against gender-based violence. It is ascertained that equal access is provided to resources, such as academic, financial aid, scholarships and career counselling, that can help female students succeed.

The Practice: Red Cross and Red Ribbon Club have installed sanitary napkins vending machines in girls' washrooms. An awareness lecture was delivered on the topic 'Say NO to CERVICAL CANCER with HPV Vaccination' by Dr Japleen Kaur, Assistant Professor, Dr B.R. Ambedkar State Institute of Medical Sciences, Mohali on 28-04-2023. There was a lack of awareness among many girls about this type of cancer and the fact that it can be prevented. This motivated the girls to get vaccinated and educate their female acquaintances about the prevention method. A self-defence workshop for girls was organised on 12-05-2023 and the resource person was B.S. Handa, Fitness Expert, Martial Arts and Yoga Trainer. Girls were taught how to use daily-use items like purses, sunglasses, phones, etc. as weapons for self-defence, how and where to punch and to always keep the emergency numbers app downloaded on mobile.

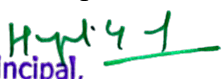

Evidence of Success: Female attendees of the lecture and workshop were empowered to exude confidence and fearlessness. The girl students developed self-confidence, physical strength, and a sense of empowerment. Moreover, the girl students established a greater understanding of personal hygiene, health, and well-being.

Problems Encountered and Resources Required: The diversity of needs among different groups of women can make it challenging to design programs that appeal to all participants. The resources required include funding, infrastructure such as classrooms or meeting spaces, equipment and materials such as computers or books, trained staff or volunteers, and partnerships or consulting/inviting experts, other organizations or community groups. Additionally, effective planning and coordination, clear communication, and ongoing evaluation and monitoring are also mandatory to ensure the success of such initiatives.

Notes: The general idea behind organizing activities for girls' upliftment and empowerment is to promote gender equality, provide opportunities for personal and professional development, and create a safe and supportive environment for girls to learn and grow. This is achieved through organizing various activities such as workshops, lectures, panel discussions, mentoring programs, leadership training, and community outreach programs. Such activities help girls to build their confidence, develop their skills, and expand their knowledge, which enables them to become self-sufficient and contribute positively to society. In turn, this can help to create a more equitable and inclusive society and empower girls to reach their full potential.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF BEST PRACTICES

The college believes that best practices are the cornerstone of excellence in higher education. By adopting a multi-dimensional approach that integrates pedagogy, technology, innovation, and sustainability, the college has created an educational ecosystem that fosters personal and academic growth, preparing its students for successful careers and meaningful lives. Our college has taken a proactive approach to facilitate an environment of continuous learning and growth by implementing a wide variety of best practices across various disciplines.

Best Practice No. 1: Rainwater Harvesting System

(Rainwater Harvesting System being constructed)

One of the biggest initiatives undertaken by the college is the adoption of rainwater harvesting systems. With the growing concern for the scarcity of water resources, the college has recognized the importance of sustainable water management. The installation of rainwater harvesting systems can help the college save water, reduce flooding, and promote groundwater recharge. The system collects rainwater runoff from rooftops and directs it to a storage tank. The stored water can then be used for various purposes such as gardening, cleaning, and flushing toilets, reducing the dependency on the municipal water supply. The college's commitment to sustainability and environmental responsibility is reflected in this initiative, and it will be instrumental in promoting a water-secure future. In continuity of the water-saving practices, a submersible pump has also been installed in the college. Submersible pumps can deliver water directly to where it is needed, increasing the efficiency and reducing the amount of water wasted. They can be used to collect rainwater, which can then be used for various purposes such as watering the plants, reducing the reliance on mains water. Submersible pumps can aid in groundwater management by extracting water from wells and boreholes, allowing

This Rainwater Harvesting System was installed through the funds allocated under the RUSA (Rashtriya Uchcharat Shiksha Abhiyan) Grant. RUSA grants provided to colleges have been instrumental in promoting educational access and supporting student success. These grants have enabled colleges to expand their capacity, invest in new technology, improve infrastructure, and increase the quality and variety of educational programs.

Best Practice No. 2: Upliftment and Empowerment of Girl Students

- The college's initiative to organize a lecture on cervix cancer for girls is motivated by the need to promote awareness and education about this serious health issue. Cervical cancer is a common form of cancer that affects women worldwide, and early detection and prevention are crucial. As of 2020, cervical cancer is the fourth most common cancer affecting women globally, with an estimated 604,000 new cases and 341,000 deaths worldwide. In India, cervical cancer is the second most common cancer affecting women, with an estimated 96,000 new cases and 60,000 deaths annually. According to the National Cancer Registry Programme, cervical cancer accounts for around 7.9 % of all female cancer cases in India. By organizing a lecture focused on cervix cancer, the college aims to empower and inform its female students about the risks, symptoms, prevention, and available treatments for this cancer. The lecture is also an opportunity for the students to learn about healthy lifestyle choices and recommended screenings to promote long-term health and wellness. The college's efforts to promote education and awareness about cervix cancer demonstrate a commitment to the overall well-being and success of its students.

- There are several ways to prevent and treat cervical cancer. Primary prevention measures include getting vaccinated against human papillomavirus (HPV), which is a leading cause of cervical cancer. Secondary prevention measures include regular screening tests such as Pap tests that can detect precancerous changes in the cervix that can be treated before they develop into cancer. In cases where cervical cancer is diagnosed, treatment options may include surgery, radiation therapy, or chemotherapy. With early detection and appropriate treatment, the prognosis for cervical cancer is generally positive, and many women are able to recover fully and live healthy, productive lives. Overall, prevention and early detection are key to reducing the impact of cervical cancer on women's health.

- A lecture on 'HIV-AIDS & Self-Hygiene' was delivered by a team from Government Hospital, Phase-6, Mohali on December 01, 2022 on the occasion of World AIDS Day. Having knowledge of HIV-AIDS and personal hygiene is of utmost importance for female students. This knowledge can greatly contribute towards the overall health and well-being of the students, as well as reduce the risk of contracting infections and diseases. In particular, basic knowledge about menstrual hygiene can help female students manage their periods effectively, reduce the risk of infections, and maintain good personal hygiene. Additionally, with the right knowledge and education, female students can also be better equipped to protect themselves from HIV and other sexually transmitted infections. Therefore, it is important to provide comprehensive education and awareness programs on these topics to female students to promote their overall health and well-being during their academic years and beyond.

- Organizing Taekwondo and self-defence workshops for girls in college is of great importance as it helps them become more equipped to handle challenging situations and protect themselves. These workshops help impart crucial self-defence techniques, which can not only help keep the girls safe but can also boost their confidence and self-esteem.
- Learning self-defence can also be empowering for girls, providing them with the necessary skills and knowledge to defend themselves and others effectively. Such workshops can also raise awareness about the importance of personal safety and the role that individuals can play in preventing incidents of violence and harassment.

India's G20 initiative is focused on promoting gender equality and women's economic empowerment among partner countries. The government is committed to promoting gender equality through various initiatives and policies, aimed at enhancing women's participation in the workforce and supporting women-led development. Additionally, there are several organizations and alliances, such as the G20 EMPOWER group, that are working towards accelerating women's leadership and empowerment in various sectors. The importance of women's empowerment and gender equality is enshrined in the Indian Constitution, and the government continues to prioritize these aspects to promote a more inclusive and equitable society. Various efforts are being made under the G20 initiative to promote gender equality and empower women through education and various activities. The college focusses on the promotion of gender neutrality, and inclusivity is a crucial aspect of creating a safe and welcoming environment for all students, regardless of their gender identity.

- The college has Girls' Common Room equipped with sanitary napkins vending machine. Moreover, the girl washrooms are also equipped with these vending machines.
- The college also has a Girls' Hostel, which is a remarkable step taken towards inviting and retaining girl students from other towns and rural areas, so that they don't have to spend excessive time travelling from their distant hometowns and making daily commutes.

IoT-based Sensor Lights

Our college's commitment to innovation and sustainability is reflected in our best practice of having IoT-based sensor lights installed from end-to-end in the corridor of the main building, next to the Principal's office. This cutting-edge technology not only enhances the safety and security of the building but also promotes energy efficiency and reduces our carbon footprint. The IoT-based sensor lights are equipped with motion sensors that detect human presence and automatically turn on and off, based on the movement in the corridor. This not only saves energy but also reduces the need for human intervention, making it a cost-effective solution. These lights are also beneficial for the safety and security of our students, staff, and visitors, as they ensure that the corridor is well-lit at all times. This innovative best practice is a testament to our college's commitment to sustainability, innovation, and excellence. We are proud to be at the forefront of this technology and will continue to explore ways to integrate technology into our practices to enhance the college experience for all.

Best Practice No. 2

Title: To instil environmental awareness among students (Environmental Preservation and Community Participation).

Objective: To promote environmental awareness and protect the college campus through various programs and initiatives. To encourage community participation in environmental preservation and social awareness.

The Context: The college recognizes the importance of environmental preservation and social awareness in creating responsible and accountable citizens. To achieve this goal, the college has implemented several programs and initiatives that promote environmental awareness and community participation.

The Practice: NSS Volunteers educate fellow students about the need for environmental awareness. The college's parks and green areas have been embraced by various departments. The Three R's (reduce, reuse, recycle) are implemented.

Community Participation: Various departments of the college have adopted five villages as part of the 'Unnat Bharat Scheme.' Students from the departments visited their adopted villages to raise awareness about the pressing matter of "straw burning" in Punjab, as well as the rising levels of air pollution. Students from the Postgraduate Departments of Fine Arts and Home Science, as well as NSS volunteers, marched through the village streets in a rally. They also interacted with farmers to learn about the issues that led to the practice of burning straw.

As part of community participation, the students also educated others on the importance of voting and the 'Right to Vote.' These activities took place in the villages of 'Daun,' 'Tira,' 'Desumajra,' and a few more. A special campaign was launched to raise public awareness about the upcoming 'Lok Sabha election.' Students also ran a door-to-door campaign to encourage first-time voters, and rallies were held to encourage voters. ELC booklets were given in remote regions to raise awareness about the right to vote and eliminate election-related myths.

Evidence of Success: The college has seen a significant improvement in environmental awareness among students and the community. The adoption of villages under the 'Unnat Bharat Scheme' has had a positive impact on the surrounding areas. The community participation initiatives have been successful in raising awareness about important social issues.

Problems Encountered: The college has faced some challenges in implementing these initiatives, including limited resources and a lack of community participation in some areas.

Resources Required: The college required resources for ongoing programs and initiatives, including financial resources for community participation initiatives, funding for environmental preservation programs, and resources for educating students and the community about environmental and social issues.
